

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
FOR THE NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS
EASTERN DIVISION

YAN CHEN,

Plaintiff,

v.

THE INDIVIDUALS, PARTNERSHIPS, AND UNINCORPORATED
ASSOCIATIONS ON SCHEDULE A,

Defendants.

Civil Action No.: 25-cv-10853

COMPLAINT

Plaintiff Yan Chen (“Plaintiff”) hereby sues the Individuals, Partnerships, and Unincorporated Associations as delineated on Schedule A hereto (collectively “Defendants”), alleging as follows:

INTRODUCTION

1. This action has been filed by Plaintiff to combat e-commerce store operators who trade upon Plaintiff’s reputation and goodwill by offering for sale and selling unauthorized and unlicensed products using infringing and counterfeit versions of Plaintiff’s federally registered trademark JALOIS (the “Counterfeit Products”). Defendants create e-commerce stores operating under one or more seller aliases that are advertising, offering for sale, and selling Counterfeit Products to unknowing consumers in the United States, including Illinois. Defendants attempt to avoid and mitigate liability by operating under one or more seller aliases to conceal both their identity and the full scope and interworking of their infringing operation.

2. Plaintiff is forced to file this action to combat Defendants' infringement and counterfeiting of its federally registered trademark as well as to protect unknowing consumers from purchasing Counterfeit Products over the internet.

3. Plaintiff has been and continues to be irreparably damaged through loss of market share, loss of future sales, inability to realize a return on investment, consumer confusion, dilution, and tarnishment of its valuable JALOIS mark as a result of Defendants' actions and seeks injunctive and monetary relief.

PARTIES

4. Plaintiff, an individual residing in the People's Republic of China, is an independent designer.

5. The JALOIS brand was founded by Plaintiff, where Plaintiff began creating creative works under the JALOIS brand around 2020.

6. Plaintiff is the legal owner of United States trademark JALOIS (hereinafter "Plaintiff's Mark"). See Exhibit A. A true and correct copy of Plaintiff's Mark registration is attached as Exhibit A.

7. Plaintiff's Mark registration information is listed below:

8. As an independent designer and rights holder, Plaintiff, under the JALOIS brand, has long been dedicated to integrating practical functionality with aesthetic design, focusing on creative expression and quality improvement in areas such as clothes hangers, furniture, and pet furniture.

9. Plaintiff, under the JALOIS brand, seeks to combine functionality and artistry through original design, providing users with high-quality products that are both practical and visually appealing.

10. Plaintiff's vision under the JALOIS brand is to grow this independent design brand that emphasizes originality and user experience, while conveying the concept of "details equal value" on a global scale.

11. All products sold under the JALOIS brand are personally designed by Plaintiff, who draws inspiration from minimalism and refined repeatedly in detail structure, size proportions, and material combinations.

12. Plaintiff's primary sales channels of products under the JALOIS brand include Amazon and the JALOIS official website, ensuring convenient purchasing for global customers.

13. The JALOIS brand serves urban professionals, pet-owning families, and similar groups. Products sold under the JALOIS brand are primarily sold through Amazon and the official website, receiving positive market feedback and customer reviews.

14. Plaintiff continuously invests significant resources into the JALOIS brand through a dual strategy of “precise communication + experience optimization” to enhance brand influence and customer loyalty.

15. Plaintiff invests significant time and resources in advertising and promotion of the JALOIS brand.

16. One of the core products sold under the JALOIS brand is the “Plastic Foldable Hanger,” with 15%–20% of annual sales revenue invested into multi-channel targeted marketing.

17. On Amazon, Plaintiff invests in search and display ads target keywords such as “home storage” and “small space organization”.

18. The JALOIS brand also participates in platform promotions like Home Festival and Prime Day. In 2024, search impressions for the “Plastic Foldable Hanger” product, sold under the JALOIS brand, increased by 120% year-over-year, and JALOIS brand-related keyword searches rose by 85%.

19. Plaintiff also invests in social media advertising, where the JALOIS brand collaborates with overseas home organization KOLs (50,000–500,000 followers) producing 32 pieces of content, generating over 5 million views, driving a 60% year-over-year increase in website traffic.

20. Plaintiff also invest in the JALOIS brand via Google Shopping ads and email marketing campaigns targeting existing customers with new product updates and exclusive discounts, maintaining an email open rate above 22% in 2024.

21. Plaintiff further invests in products pages and customer experience, enhancing the JALOIS brand.

22. Plaintiff’s JALOIS product pages were enhanced with detailed images (e.g., folding clasp structure, weight-bearing tests), 30-second tutorial videos, and highlighted design patent markings with anti-counterfeit verification. In 2024, average dwell time increased from 1:20 to 2:15 minutes, and add-to-cart rates rose by 28%.

23. Plaintiff further invested in customer services of the JALOIS brand, adopting a 24-hour after-sales response mechanism, with personalized follow-up for negative reviews. Positive customer feedback (e.g., “saved 30% closet space”, “no breakage after 6 months”) was compiled into case studies for reuse on product pages and social media. As a result, the overall positive review rate increased from 88% to 95%, and repeat purchase rates grew by 40% compared to 2023.

24. Plaintiff also invested in user surveys regarding the JALOIS brand, which were conducted regularly to gather needs (e.g., “add more hooks”, “offer different colors”), feeding into product iterations to reinforce a “user-centered” brand image.

25. As a result, Plaintiff and the JALOIS brand are well-known throughout the United States and elsewhere as a source of high-quality products.

26. Plaintiff also owns common law trademark rights in its JALOIS marks as a result of its long-standing use. Plaintiff’s Mark is also registered with the United States Patent and Trademark Office. Plaintiff’s products typically include at least Plaintiff’s Mark. Plaintiff uses the trademark in connection with the marketing of their products.

27. The above U.S. registration for the Plaintiff’s Mark is valid, subsisting, and in full force and effect. The registration for Plaintiff’s Mark constitutes prima facie evidence of its validity and of Plaintiff’s exclusive right to use Plaintiff’s Mark pursuant to 15 U.S.C. § 1057(b).

28. Plaintiff’s Mark has been used continuously for a long duration and has never been abandoned. Plaintiff’s Mark is distinctive and identifies merchandise as goods from Plaintiff.

29. Plaintiff's Mark is distinctive when applied to the Plaintiff's products, signifying to the purchaser that the products come from Plaintiff and are manufactured to Plaintiff's quality standards. Plaintiff has ensured that products bearing Plaintiff's Mark are manufactured to the highest quality standards.

30. The innovative marketing and product designs of Plaintiff's products have enabled the Plaintiff's JALOIS brand to achieve widespread recognition. The widespread recognition, outstanding reputation, and significant goodwill associated with the Plaintiff's JALOIS brand have made Plaintiff's Mark an invaluable asset of Plaintiff.

31. Plaintiff has expended substantial time, money, and other resources in developing, advertising, and otherwise promoting Plaintiff's Mark. As a result, Plaintiff's Mark is widely recognized and exclusively associated by consumers, the public, and the trade as a source of high-quality products. Plaintiff's Mark has achieved tremendous recognition which has only added to the distinctiveness of Plaintiff's Mark. As such, the goodwill associated with Plaintiff's Mark is of incalculable and inestimable value to Plaintiff.

32. Sales of products under the JALOIS brand are significant.

33. In 2024, the JALOIS brand achieved significant growth from $450,000 to $920,000. This growth was driven by the innovative design of the core product "Plastic Foldable Hanger," which combines lightweight materials, space-saving foldable structure, and non-slip hooks to meet urban and small-space household needs. This product accounted for 65% of annual sales, with a 40% year-over-year increase in repeat purchases.

34. As detailed above, through Amazon advertising and optimized scenario-based displays on the official website, JALOIS product search impressions increased by 120% year-over-year, and new customer conversion rates on the website reached 16%. This reflects strong market recognition of original, practical home products and reinforces the JALOIS brand's foundation in the home storage design sector.

35. However, based on the Plaintiff's JALOIS brand market popularity and associated reputation and goodwill, Plaintiff became aware of multiple sellers on online platforms who also started to sell the same or similar products, through the same or similar channels of trade, under Plaintiff's Mark. As such, Plaintiff filed this action to combat these seller aliases listed on Schedule A who are harming Plaintiff by offering to sell, selling, and shipping unlicensed products that infringe and counterfeit Plaintiff's Mark.

36. Plaintiff has not entered a contract with or licensing agreement with Defendants for Plaintiff's Mark. Defendants are not authorized sellers of products bearing Plaintiff's Mark.

37. The influx of knock-off copies of products under Plaintiff's Mark led to a sharp drop in revenue.

38. Plaintiff's market monitoring and financial analysis identified the following economic losses due to Defendants' Counterfeit Products, which mainly include counterfeits of one of Plaintiff's core products, the "Plastic Foldable Hanger".

39. In Q2 of 2024, Counterfeit Products were believed to have entered the market via Amazon third-party stores and cross-border e-commerce platforms at 25% below the authentic price. The Counterfeit Products closely replicated the folding structure but cut costs on material thickness and load capacity. This caused a 15% quarter-over-quarter drop in sales of the authentic JALOIS product, with direct economic losses of approximately $58,000. Negative reviews from misled buyers (due to breakage/deformation) lowered the JALOIS brand's overall rating, reducing new customer conversion by 6% and causing an additional $15,000 in potential losses. The total Q2 2024 economic loss is estimated to be about $73,000.

40. In Q3 of 2024, infringement expanded to include stolen promotional images and false claims of “same patented design” across Amazon, eBay, and other platforms. Quarterly sales dropped 20% year-over-year compared to Q3 of 2023, resulting in $132,000 in direct losses. Plaintiff further incurred legal expenses for marketplace platform complaints, notarization, and attorney letters to combat the overwhelming amount of seller aliases infringing, the cost of which totaled $25,000. The total Q3 2024 economic loss is estimated to be about $157,000.

41. In Q4 of 2024, despite Plaintiff’s successful takedowns of 8 major infringing stores, counterfeit products persisted at low prices. Consumer trust required time to recover, and sales of the authentic product grew only 2% quarter-over-quarter (below the expected 10%), resulting in a shortfall of $38,000. Additionally, $12,000 was spent on anti-counterfeit measures, such as exclusive security codes and product testing videos. The total Q4 2024 economic loss is estimated to be about $50,000.

42. In 2024 alone, infringement from various online counterfeiters resulted in combined direct economic losses and indirect costs of $280,000, accounting for 30.4% of total annual sales, significantly undermining both growth targets and the market reputation of the core JALOIS product.

43. Due to Defendants’ illegal activities, Plaintiff has suffered significant loss in market share, Plaintiff has not been able to realize the return of investment in Plaintiff’s Mark, Plaintiff has lost profits and will lose future profit, Plaintiff has lost marketplace rankings and visibility, Plaintiff has lost complete control over Plaintiff’s JALOIS brand, Plaintiff has lost reputation, and Plaintiff has lost associated goodwill.

44. Plaintiff filed this action to combat these seller aliases' "swarm of attacks" on the Plaintiff's Mark because filing individual causes of action against each infringer ignores the form of harm Plaintiff faces.

45. This infringing and counterfeiting behavior by Defendants severely impacts Plaintiff's trademark rights and undermines the fair competition environment in the market. Plaintiff's market share has been illegally eroded.

46. Plaintiff has lost control over the rights in the Plaintiff's Mark, lost control in Plaintiff's and Plaintiff's Mark reputation, and lost associated goodwill of Plaintiff's Mark.

47. Defendants are partnerships, individuals, and/or unincorporated associations operating as fictitious seller aliases on online platforms who target sales to Illinois residents by setting up and operating various, interactive "storefronts" under aliases via online retail websites.

48. Defendants' interactive sites are in English and accept U.S. Dollars.

49. Defendants target Illinois consumers by selling, offering to sell, and shipping Counterfeit Products to the United States, including Illinois, that infringe and counterfeit Plaintiff's Mark. See Exhibits B.

50. Based on the seller alias names and limited available information, Defendants reside and operate in the People's Republic of China with lenient intellectual property enforcement systems or redistribute products from the same or similar sources in those locations. As a result, Defendants have the capacity to be sued pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 17(b). See Exhibit C.

51. Defendants, either individually or jointly, operate one or more e-commerce stores under the seller aliases listed in Schedule A. Through fictitious seller aliases and the anonymity allowed by marketplace platforms, Defendants purposely conceal their identity and the full scope of their operations.

52. Defendants have the opportunity to operate under a proper individual, partnership, or entity name, but Defendants willfully choose to operate under a fictitious seller alias.

DEFENDANTS' INFRINGING AND COUNTERFEITING CONDUCT

53. While each seller alias (or Defendant) alone may appear as some small-time infringer and counterfeiter, the actions of Defendants are of enormous detriment, coordinated, and related.

54. The infringement and counterfeiting empire Defendants participate in and takes advantage of is a $500+ Billion Dollar industry. The U.S. Department of Homeland Security recognizes this serious threat posed by Defendants, detailing the expansive nature as seen below (See Exhibit E):

55. Third party online platforms do not adequately subject sellers to verification and confirmation of their identities and products, allowing infringers to “routinely use false or inaccurate names and addresses when registering with these e-commerce platforms.” Exhibit D, Daniel C.K. Chow, Alibaba, Amazon, and Counterfeiting in the Age of the Internet, 40 NW. J. INT’L L. & BUS. 157, 186 (2020).

56. “At least some e-commerce platforms, little identifying information is necessary for [an infringer] to begin selling” and recommending that “[s]ignificantly enhanced vetting of third-party sellers” is necessary.” Exhibit E, Combating Trafficking in Counterfeit and Pirated Goods prepared by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security’s Office of Strategy, Policy, and Plans.

Because these online platforms generally do not require a seller to identify the underlying business entity, infringers can have many different profiles that can appear unrelated even though they are commonly owned and operated.

57. Based on research of the aliases, Defendants engaged in fraudulent conduct when registering the seller alias by providing false, misleading and/or incomplete information to e-commerce platform(s) to prevent discovery of their true identity, location, and/or the scope of their e-commerce operations. See Exhibit C.

58. The e-commerce stores operating under the seller alias appears sophisticated, fully interactive, and accepts payment in U.S. dollars via credit cards, Alipay, Amazon Pay, and/or PayPal. Defendant's e-commerce stores are in English. The e-commerce stores operating under the seller aliases includes content and images that make it very difficult for consumers to distinguish such stores from an authorized retailer of products under Plaintiff's Mark.

59. Defendants concurrently employ and benefit from substantially similar advertising and marketing strategies as Plaintiff. For example, Defendants facilitates sales by designing the e-commerce store(s) operating under the seller aliases so that they appear to unknowing consumers to be authorized online retailers, outlet stores, or wholesalers of authorized products embodying Plaintiff's Mark. See Exhibits B.

60. Upon information and belief, Defendants regularly register new seller aliases for the purpose of offering for sale and selling infringing products, including the Counterfeit Products. Such seller alias registration patterns are one of many common tactics used by Defendants to conceal their identities and the scope of their infringing operations. Such tactics help Defendants avoid being shut down. Even after being shut down through enforcement efforts, Defendants may conveniently register another storefront, ASIN, or webpage under a new seller alias and continue to sell the Counterfeit Products.

61. Defendants use fictitious name(s) to keep selling despite Plaintiff's actions.

62. Defendants have bank accounts outside this Court's reach and move money there regularly to avoid paying any monetary judgment. In fact, financial records from similar Schedule A cases show that off-shore sellers frequently transfer money from U.S. accounts to foreign ones on a regular basis, and upon notice of a lawsuit, to avoid paying any judgment ordered by a court of law in the United States.

63. Defendants have the ability to quickly and easily change e-commerce store data, including but not limited to titles, descriptions, images, videos, Date First Available, and other product description information.

64. Defendants are working in active concert to knowingly and willfully manufacture, import, distribute, offer for sale, and sell Counterfeit Products in the same transaction, occurrence, or series of transactions or occurrences.

65. Even though Defendants operate under multiple fictitious seller aliases, the e-commerce stores operating under the seller aliases share unique identifiers establishing a logical relationship, such as templates with common design elements that intentionally omit reliable contact information, the same registration patterns, the same accepted payment methods, the same check-out methods, the same keywords and titles, the same or similar product descriptions, the same advertising tactics, the same or similar images and videos, similarities in pricing and quantities, and/or the same incorrect grammar and misspellings.

66. All Defendants use the same first product image on their storefront – further establishing a logical relationship amongst Defendants, including either one of the following:

67. All Defendants use the same image rotations to view the product on their respective storefronts – further establishing a logical relationship amongst Defendants, including either one of the following combinations of additional images:

68. Defendants are involved in, review, and/or are in communication with one another via WeChat and QQ.com chat rooms and through websites such as sellerdefense.cn, kaidianyo.com, and kuajingvs.com, that provide litigation specific content to warn anonymous seller alias networks of upcoming lawsuits against their many respective product listings and aliases – further establishing a logical relationship.

69. Defendants' Counterfeit Products appear nearly identical – being either image seen in paragraph 67, evidencing that all Counterfeit Products are manufactured by and come from common source(s) - further establishing a logical relationship amongst Defendants.

70. Each Defendant, in a virtually identical manner, attempts to avoid liability by going to great lengths to conceal both their identities and the full scope and interworking of their operation, utilizing fictitious seller aliases and providing no further, credible identifying information, further establishing a logical relationship amongst Defendants. See Exhibit C.

71. Each Defendant, in a virtually identical manner, is utilizing the same channel of trade - Amazon, in the same time period - further establishing a logical relationship amongst Defendants.

72. All Defendants take advantage of a set of circumstances - the anonymity and mass reach the internet affords - to sell counterfeit and infringing goods, including the Counterfeit Products, across international borders. Defendants each utilize fictitious seller aliases, at the same time, to violate Plaintiff's intellectual property rights as a swarm, with impunity.

73. All Defendants can easily and quickly transfer or conceal their funds in their use payment and financial accounts to avoid detection and liability in the event that the Plaintiff's infringement control efforts are discovered, or Plaintiff obtains a monetary award.

74. All Defendants understand that their ability to profit through anonymous internet stores is enhanced as their numbers increase, even though they may not all engage in direct communication or coordination.

75. The natural and intended byproduct of Defendants' logically related actions is the erosion and destruction of the goodwill and reputation associated with Plaintiff's JALOIS brand and the destruction of the legitimate market sector in which it operates.

76. The e-commerce stores operating under the seller aliases offer to sell, and stand ready, willing, and able to, and upon information and belief, have sold and shipped Counterfeit Products to the United States, including Illinois. See Exhibits B.

77. Questions of fact common to all Defendants will arise inherently do to their alleged common or interrelated ownership, identical anonymous nature and foreign status – requiring the same methods to investigate, uncover, and collect evidence about infringing and counterfeiting activity, and based upon Defendants’ same or similar use of Plaintiff’s Mark on the same or similar Counterfeit Products – requiring the same legal and factual infringement analysis. See Exhibits B-C.

78. Defendants’ use of the Plaintiff’s Mark in connection with the advertising, distribution, offering for sale, and sale of Counterfeit Products, including the sale of Counterfeit Products into Illinois, is likely to cause and has caused confusion, mistake, and deception by and among consumers and is irreparably harming Plaintiff.

79. Defendants’ infringing and counterfeiting use of the JALOIS brand has caused significant financial loss to Plaintiff.

80. Defendants will continue to sell and offer for sale products containing Plaintiff’s intellectual property, namely products containing in whole, or in part, Plaintiff’s Mark, unless preliminarily and permanently enjoined.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

81. This is an action for infringement of Plaintiff’s Mark arising under the Lanham Act, 15 U.S.C. § 1051, et seq. This Court has original subject matter jurisdiction over this claim under 28 U.S.C. §1331 and §1338. This Court has jurisdiction over the claims in this action that arise under the laws of the State of Illinois pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1367(a) because the state law claims are so related to the federal claims that they form part of the same case or controversy and derive from a common nucleus of operative facts.

82. Personal jurisdiction is proper because each Defendant directly targets consumers in the United States, including in Illinois, through at least the fully interactive commercial Internet store operating under the seller aliases, where Defendants advertise, display, offer to sell, and upon information and belief, sells and ships Counterfeit Products to residents within the Northern District of Illinois. See Exhibit B. As a result, each Defendant has purposefully availed themselves of the privilege of conducting business in the forum state or purposefully directed their trademark infringement and counterfeiting activities at the state; Plaintiff's injuries stems from the Defendants' forum-related activities of offering to sell, selling, and shipping Counterfeit Products to the forum-state; and the exercise of personal jurisdiction comports with traditional notions of fair play and substantial justice.

83. Each Defendant is reaching out to do business with Illinois residents by operating one or more commercial, interactive internet stores through which Illinois residents can and upon information and belief, have, purchased products infringing and counterfeiting Plaintiff's Mark. Each Defendant has targeted sales from Illinois residents by operating an online store that offers shipping to the United States, including Illinois, accepts payment in United States Dollars, is in English, and upon information and belief, has sold and shipped Counterfeit Products to Illinois residents.

84. Each Defendant is systematically directing or targeting their business activities at consumers in the United States, including Illinois, through at least the Internet platforms Amazon.com, under the Seller Aliases, through which consumers in the United States, including Illinois, can and do view Defendants' Counterfeit Product listings, communicate with Defendants regarding their respective Counterfeit Products, place orders for Defendants' Counterfeit Products, and ship Defendants' Counterfeit Products to United States addresses, including Illinois. See Exhibits B. Despite being from a foreign nation, Defendants' e-commerce stores are made to confuse consumers that they and/or their products originate in the United States, and the store is in English and accepts USD. See Exhibits B-C. The level of interactivity is high, where consumers of Illinois can: communicate to Defendants about Counterfeit Products, view the Counterfeit Products, purchase the Counterfeit Products, and ship the Counterfeit Products to their respective Illinois addresses. Defendants, through their fictitious seller aliases, utilize Amazon.com and likely other marketplace platforms for the sole purpose of conducting business transactions, as described above. The Internet webpages owned and operated by Defendants, as described above, are purely commercial in nature. The level of interactivity of these marketplace platform listings owned and operated by Defendants are extremely high and establish regular business with the U.S. and Illinois.

85. Alternatively, personal jurisdiction is proper pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 4(k)(2), where "a claim that arises under federal law, serving a summons or filing a waiver of service establishes personal jurisdiction over a defendant if: (A) the defendant is not subject to jurisdiction in any state's courts of general jurisdiction; and (B) exercising jurisdiction is consistent with the United States Constitution and laws." Based on the limited information found on Defendants' Counterfeit Product listings and based on the seller aliases being of foreign origin, each Defendant is a foreign entity or unincorporated association (if not the same) not subject to any state's courts general jurisdiction, and exercising jurisdiction is consistent with the United States Constitution and laws.

86. Venue in the Northern District of Illinois is proper pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1391 because a substantial part of the events that give rise to the claim occur within this District, each Defendant has committed acts of infringement and counterfeiting in and has significant contacts within this District – as described above, and each Defendant as delineated in Schedule A is directly targeting their business activities of offering to sell, selling, and shipping the Counterfeit Products to this District.

87. Based on information found on Defendant's Counterfeit Product listings and based on the seller aliases themselves, each Defendant is a foreign entity or individual, and "a defendant not resident in the United States may be sued in any judicial district." 28 U.S.C. § 1391(c)(3).

109. By using Plaintiff's Mark in connection with the sale of Counterfeit Products, Defendants create a false designation of origin and a misleading representation of fact as to the origin and approval of the Counterfeit Products.
